Summary

I'm a jr. software engineer with a background on product management and economics. I have a great past experience working with object oriented programming languages and lower level system programming. I am deeply interested in backend services and performance optimization, data structures and algorithms and I often find myself writing frontend logic for most of my personal projects. I have a very good understanding of Unix systems, microservices, networking, CI/CD pipelines and good knowledge of computer security. I have worked in large teams of engineers in the past adopting the SCRUM method.
